CREDIT UNION 24 EXTENDS AGREEMENT WITH ALLPOINT TO OFFER NEARLY 50,000 SURCHARGE-FREE ATMS THROUGH CU HERE PREMIUM NETWORK

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. – June 25, 2008– Credit Union 24, the largest credit union-owned point-of-sale (POS) network in the U.S., announced today it has extended its relationship with the Allpoint Network and will continue to offer the CU HERE Premium network and its more than 45,000 surcharge-free ATMs to its credit union participants.

Credit Union 24 signed a multi-year deal with Allpoint to ensure that Credit Union 24 participants are able to continue offering their members surcharge-free access to on- and off-premise ATMs across the nation. The Allpoint ATMs are part of Credit Union 24's CU HERE Premium program, which was introduced in December 2007 and is nearly three times the size of the largest bank-controlled ATM network. Credit Union 24 will continue to offset the cost of the program for its participants who choose to utilize non-surcharging ATMs as a tool to grow their membership.

"We're happy to be able to ensure that Credit Union 24's CU HERE family of surcharge-free ATM programs will continue to be a powerful, long-term opportunity to position credit unions and Credit Union 24 as the undisputed leader in surcharge-free ATM access," said Jim Park, President and CEO of Credit Union 24. "These programs help tilt the playing field for credit unions by allowing them to offer nearly three times the surcharge-free coverage as the largest bank.

The CU HERE Premium network combines with the Credit Union 24 point-of-sale network to give credit union members nearly half a million access points across the country.

An independent research study estimated that U.S. consumers spent $8.8 billion on ATM surcharges in 2006 and 2007. In recent years ATM surcharges have increased steadily, with the average ATM surcharge costing $1.86 in 2007 and the most common surcharge costing $2, with some larger national financial institutions charging as much as $3.

“Considering today’s economy and the need for American families to save money, credit union membership, including the benefits and access that the CU HERE Premium program and Credit Union 24’s point-of-sale network provide, are a viable and needed alternative to other financial institutions,” Park said. “One of our stated goals when we started the CU HERE Premium program was to educate the general public that credit union membership is not limited to a certain few and that credit union membership can help provide the financial self-determination that we all seek.”
